

The Unintended Consequences of Interest Rate Caps in Texas

Government price controls on credit will harm, not help, hard-working Texans

Eliminates $1.4 billion in credit access to hard-working Texans

FACT: Every state that has imposed interest rate caps has seen a sharp decrease in access to credit for millions of Americans with a financial emergency. Nearly $1.4 billion in short-term credit will be eliminated when a government price control is deployed.

Forces Texans into more expensive borrowing options

Over
1,000%
APR

Without legitimate borrowing options, millions of Texans will be forced to more expensive alternatives such as bank overdrafts (over 1,000% APR), utility shut-off fees (over 1,000% APR), unregulated lenders, and criminal elements.

Creates a market for unscrupulous lenders

FACT: Upon passing onerous regulations and rate caps in Ohio, nearly all legitimate short-term lenders shut down operations. Ohio immediately saw a spike in citizen complaints from out-of-state, overseas, and unlicensed lenders.

Higher bankruptcies, overdrafts, and consumer complaints

FACT: The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported when Georgia and North Carolina banned short-term lending, households bounced more checks and filed for Ch. 7 bankruptcy much more often than states without restrictions.
